

Career destinations

BA (Hons) Film and Television Studies

Percentage of leavers in known destinations (2009)

Examples of employment obtained by leavers (2009)

Job title	Employer
Post Production Assistant	UNIT Post Production
Runner	Endemol - Talk Back Thames
Runner	Factory
Runner / Production Assistant	Bang Media
Shadowing	ELSA (European Life Settlement Association)
Film-Maker and Editor Intern	Southampton Solent University
Programming Assistant	The coast

Knowledge and skills

Graduates have an academic and critical understanding of film and television together with skills in media production and experience in using industry standard equipment. Transferable skills include thinking creatively, good communication and presentation, working both in a team and independently, being able to organise an activity and evaluating their own work.

Career opportunities

In addition to working in creative aspects of the industry there are opportunities in research, administration, distribution and film archiving. The skills acquired relate to employment areas other than film making and broadcasting which include advertising, marketing, public relations, publishing, journalism and arts administration.

Employers include broadcasters, independent production companies, communications companies and large organisations supporting in-house production.

This is a very competitive career area and relevant experience such as volunteering or completing a work placement is very valuable. It is common for graduates to start in an entry level job including secretarial and administrative work, assisting a producer or director on set, and being a runner.