ellarodgersart Due to COVID-19, a lot has changed in terms of my degree - particularly the end of year degree show. We no longer have a "real" exhibition to showcase work. We have had to find new ways to appropriately display our art. Alongside this, my art materials/workspace have been inaccessible which has led me to the creation of 'Objectifying Bodies: a household series'. This is an online series of found objects which utilises household items to illustrate the analogy between food, sex, and women's body parts with the use of double entendres. ellarodgersart Cheeri-hoes, 2020. Clay, resin and stainless steel in tempered glass bowl.

Originally, I planned to showcase these sculptures in a typical 'white cube' setting, but due to the current COVID-19 pandemic, my art has taken a different journey and I now feel that my creative practice works better in an online platform. I have decided to exhibit this work in an 'at home' setting. This is partly due to lockdown leaving me very few places to present my sculptural works, but also because I feel that this makes my work more relatable to others - after all, women's bodies are objectified/referred to as meat (food) EVERY SINGLE DAY. By placing these in a 'comfortable' home environment, I hope to gain attention that our bodies are used for consumption even in our most relaxed environments.
