SILØ700 RADIO

ELEANOR BROWN

WELCOME, WELCOME TO THE SAFE AND BEAUTIFUL WORLD OF PLANET C52-B. PLEASE BREATH YOUR OXYGEN AND RELAX INTO THE STARS. THE ABSOLUTION IS UPON US.

The Silo 70 radio show is the only broadcast on earth, more commonly called C52-B. It is the only one the planet needs. The only one it requires. This show is not what it seems and as you listen further you will soon find that the world which Silo 70 portrays is vastly different to our reality. Listen in and experience weird monitoring devices disguised as dolls, governments that are acting strangely, humans disappearing, oxygen packs, and silos that are weirdly everywhere.

Episodic Plan

Episode 1: The first episode of the radio is underway, however not all is what it seems with the world and there seems to be an uninvited guest.

Episode 2: The radio show is kicking off again but this time with more music and a duo comedy act. Another uninvited guest appears and proceeds to dismantle the show.

Episode 3: After the first two broadcasts it's decided that it will take a different approach to avoid an appearence of another.

Episode 4: The shows ratings are lower than ever following the last episode and something is brewing behind the scenes.

Episode 5: The show is in shambles and it's beginning to look victoriious for the rebels

Episode 6: The end is near, but things aren't like they appear.

Created by Eleanor Brown

3browe95@solent.ac.uk 07572 690 879

Radio Announcer played by Ruban Nathan ruban.k.nathan@gmail.com

> Entertainer played by Rachel Brown rbrown112@btinternet.com

Omnilife Advertiser played by Madeleine Brown madeleine.eve.brown@gmail.com

Broadcast Hijacker played by Jessica Williams Instagram: jess_gracewilliams