Project information

„Deadly Jewellery“ is a photography series compiled in a fashion zine dealing with pollution.

The disposal society we live in, and the use of single-use plastic has a huge negative impact on the ocean and environment. Many animals die because of plastic pollution in the ocean. And it is getting worse every day.

The series turns things around by featuring models wearing accessories made from plastic. The pictures are inspired by pictures of the fashion photographer Tania Volo-bueva and fashion magazines like Vogue and Haper´s Baazar. Apart from the photographs, the zine also features spoof adverts regarding pollution and consumerism.

The project was created to raise awareness to those topics in our modern world.
